Nomination to the Design award of the Federal Republic of Germany 2010

The Design award of the Federal Republic of Germany is the highest official german award in the sector of Design. This award is also named „Award of the Awards.“

The Reason: No other Design award makes similar demands on their participants. A Company is only able to take part on this award, if its product won a national or international award in the past.

Another requirement for the participation is the nomination by the Department of Trade and Industry of the Federal States of Germany and from the German Federal Ministry of Economy and Technology instructed German Design Council.

Three products of Fischer Möbel has pass the great demands and got nominations for the Design award 2010.

First our Kyoto Coating Line, that has many awards won in the past, was nominated. The designer Wolf Udo Wagner created the Kyoto Line based on Origami – the Japanese art of folding paper.

The Univers – Collection, which was designed from the same designer, was nominated by the German Design Council because of its innovative lounge concept.

Furthermore the Taku Armchair was nominated, which quite recently won the reddot award – best of the best 2009. This Collection was developed by the Danish designer Mads Odgard for the German outdoors specialist Fischer Möbel. The stacking chair is lightweight and shows a clear design.
